NATION'S 1946 CROP OUTPUT TOPS RECORDS

CORN, WHEAT AND POTATOES PASS 1942 MARK

BY OVID A. MARTIN

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The greatest crop production in the nation's history is being realized as the growing season nears an end, the agriculture department reported today.

The department said aggregate production of all crops will be 2.5 percent more than the previous record of 1942 and 26.4 percent above the 1923-32 average.

Topping this year's production will be record crops of corn and wheat.

Weather conditions in September, while not favorable in all localities, maintained or improved previous prospects for most crops. The estimated production of nearly all crops is slightly higher than a month ago, with the principal exception of cotton, which showed a sharp decline.

Good Quality Assured

The department said the corn crop—always in danger of being damaged by early frosts—is maturing with little damage and that good quality is assured. Last year's crop was damaged by frosts and the quality was unusually poor—a fact that helped to contribute to the feed shortage last spring and summer.

Potatoes moved into the record group this month, joining corn, wheat, tobacco, peaches, plums and truck crops. Oats, rice and peanuts moved a step nearer to production records. Also in the near-record class are grapes, cherries and sugar cane.

Average or better crops are still indicated for hay, soybeans, dried peas, prunes, apricots, hops and sugar beets, while flaxseed, sorghum grains, buckwheat, sweet potatoes and apples moved up into this class during September.

Cotton prospects, on the other hand, dropped to the lowest level in 25 years.

Other below average crops are rye, broomcorn, dried beans and peaches, although dried bean prospects improved in September.

The department said production of livestock feed grains will amount to 126,500,000 tons, or 4 percent above the 1942 record. It includes 3,374,000,000 bushels of corn, 1,527,000,000 bushels of oats, 255,000,000 bushels of barley and 88,000,000 bushels of sorghum grain. The corn estimate compares with 3,371,707,000 forecast a month ago, 3,018,410,000 last year and 2,608,499,000 for the 1935-44 average.

Feed Grains Abundant

This big feed grain crop opens the way for an expansion in production of meats, dairy and poultry products, because supplies of feed per animal are expected, the department said, to be the most liberal in history despite relatively small carryover stocks from last year.

Food grain production likewise tops any previous year, totaling 37,400,000 tons, and including a winter wheat crop of 879,894,000 bushels and a spring wheat crop of 289,528,000, an improvement of over 2,000,000 bushels during September.

The department said farmers are making good progress in preparing soil and seeding winter wheat for harvest next year. In the great plains, soil moisture conditions were said to be mostly favorable for this crop.

With harvest nearing completion.

Proposal For Free Danube Navigation Approved At Paris

BY LOUIS NEVIN

Paris, Friday, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Paris peace conference approved today a joint American and British proposal for free navigation on the Danube river and completed work on the terms of the peace treaty with Rumania.

The vote on the Danube issue was 15 to six—the division being along the usual east-west lines. Earlier the American and British pleas for free navigation on this key European river and unhampered trade in the Balkans were met by Soviet accusations that "dollar democracies" were seeking to further their "imperialistic" ambitions.

The sharp clash between the western and eastern viewpoints came as the conference rushed toward completion of the peace treaty with Rumania after putting the final stamp on the Italian pact.

The delegates began voting on the Romanian treaty at the start of tonight's plenary session, completing the political articles in 45 minutes with little difficulty.

They agreed also to reduce Romania's armed forces to 125,000 men for the army, 5,000 men and 15,000 tons of shipping for the navy and 100 combat and 50 transport planes and 8,000 men for the air force. Then the delegates went on to vote on the disputed Danubian and commercial clauses.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich) told the conference that a free Danube is "indispensable to the economic health and therefore to the peace of central Europe." British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, in full support, charged that Soviet opposition "gives rise to a good deal of suspicion to the designs of the Soviet Union in this part of the world."

In respect to equal trade privileges Bevin asserted that it "will be very difficult for us to accept the final treaty unless Great Britain is given precisely the same treatment as others are given."

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov responded with the statement that if equal trade privileges were permitted in the Balkans the "power of the American dollar" would overwhelm weak local industries and "take everything."

He added that "we must take care that no postwar difficulties be exploited by 'dollar democracies.' It is not because a country has many dollars that it can impose its rule on others."

The decontrol issue was placed squarely up to the administration in a formal petition of the beef packers, backed by sworn statements that livestock on the hoof is plentiful.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, to whom the petition was made, promised a speedy answer. He presumably will be governed by the president's position.

That was emphatically against removing ceilings two weeks ago. But a question mark appeared today when the president at his news conference declined to comment when asked whether he still holds that view.

No Decision Yet

The session at the White House reached no decision, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross reported, and the full cabinet will review the meat shortage tomorrow. Ross said tonight's meeting "was simply a session in which the president listened to these men." They included both Attorney General Clark and Clark Clifford, presidential legal counsel, as well as officials directly concerned with meat.

Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan was one of the conferees. The others were Undersecretary of the Treasury O. Max Gardner, Undersecretary of State Will Clayton, Reconversion Director John R. Steelman, Price Administrator Paul Porter, Richard H. Field of the OPA and Robert H. Shields of the agriculture department. Anderson himself was out of town.

The session lasted an hour and 45 minutes. It was the fourth such conference within a week, but the first attended personally by Mr. Truman.

The president's unwillingness to commit himself on the question of meat price controls today, in contrast with his previous defense of ceilings, caused a stir among the reporters.

Questioning turned to other matters and then returned to the meat question when a reporter asked whether the president "refused to affirm" his position for retention of meat ceilings, which he enunciated emphatically at another session with reporters just two weeks ago.

The answer to the question was a negative and Mr. Truman added that he had no comment to make at this time.

Chinese Celebrate Independence While Civil War Rages

BY SPENCER MOOSA

Shanghai, Oct. 10 (AP)—Bands played and gay crowds thronged Shanghai and Nanking streets today while Chinese fought Chinese to the death at the battlefronts on the 35th anniversary of the Sun Yat-sen revolution.

Celebration of the birth of China's republic came on the darkest hour since V-J Day. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, re-elected today by a standing committee of his government party (Kuomintang) to a somewhat indefinite term as president, restored military conscription. He was quoted as saying he did so for military reconstruction and national defense.

At Yenan, Chinese Communists charged that he lacked the manpower for the replacements reportedly demanded by his generals on the scattered civil war fronts.

Discovery of the bodies was made after neighbors and the apartment caretaker (1800 W. Bethune) investigated to discover the reason why no activity had been noticed about the apartment for a couple of days, Harvill added.

Iceland's Cabinet Resigns In Fight Over U. S. Airfield

Reykjavik, Iceland, Oct. 10 (AP)—A split in Iceland's cabinet over the Althing's (parliament's) ratification of the Iceland-United States airport agreement caused the cabinet's resignation today.

Prime Minister Olafur Thors, announcing the resignation at the Althing's meeting today, said the president had asked the cabinet to continue functioning until a new cabinet could be formed.

Mrs. Winter, who remained impassive throughout the trial, shook hands with each juror and said, "I am very happy. I did not know what verdict to expect, because the state's attorney seemed so severe with me. I will spend the night at the home of my attorney and tomorrow I will return to my farm—my cows, my chickens and my dog, Rocky."

The jury retired at 6 p. m. after three days of testimony and took only one ballot before returning with its verdict.

KEY ADVISORS OF PRESIDENT DISCUSS MEAT

WHITE HOUSE CALLS HUDDLE ON DEMAND FOR DECONTROL

BY WILLIAM R. SPEAR

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—With the question of easing meat controls to the fore, President Truman went into a huddle tonight with key advisors, including the two who would draft any executive order.

The decontrol issue was placed squarely up to the administration in a formal petition of the beef packers, backed by sworn statements that livestock on the hoof is plentiful.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, to whom the petition was made, promised a speedy answer. He presumably will be governed by the president's position.

Hitler Gang Denied Firing Squad Death, Gets Noose Oct. 16

BY RICHARD KASISCHKE

Berlin, Oct. 10 (AP)—Hermann Goering and three arch Nazis lost an appeal tonight to die a soldier's death before a firing squad and the Allied control council confirmed that Hitler's once-designated successor and ten of his associates will die on the gallows next Wednesday.

After five and one-half hours of deliberation the four-power council rejected clemency appeals for 16 high Nazis convicted for crimes against the world and humanity.

In confirming the death sentences, the council rejected appeals by Goering, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl to be executed by a firing squad instead of a soldier's disgrace by hanging. It also refused the plea of Grand Admiral Erich Raeder to be shot instead of given life imprisonment.

Thus Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop, Keitel, Jodl, Alfred Rosenberg, Hans Frank, Wilhelm Frick, Fritz Sauckel, Julius Streicher and Arthur Seyss-Inquart lost their last chance to escape the hangman's noose.

Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Hitler's former chief of secret police who also was sentenced to die, made no petition for clemency.

The council also rejected the plea for clemency on behalf of Martin Bormann, the 12th Nazi sentenced to die at Nuremberg although he was tried in absentia.

The council said his plea was "premature" but that a new petition could be submitted within four days of his apprehension, should this occur.

The official statement did not announce when the seven sentenced to prison terms ranging from life down to 10 years would be transferred from the Nuremberg jail to a prison in Berlin, reportedly Spandau in the British sector.

MAJOR STRIKES STILL DRAGGING

Maritime Commission Considers Plan To End Ship Tieup

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Efforts to settle the nation's three major strikes were bogged down or plodding on Thursday night with little indication of early results.

This was the situation: Shipping: Government negotiations marked time to permit the maritime commission in Washington to consider some possible move to end the 10-day strike on all coasts. Peace talks stalled on Wednesday when the AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots and the CIO Marine Engineers insisted the maritime commission put into effect on government owned west coast vessels any agreement reached on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Pittsburgh power: The strike of independent union employees of the Duquesne Light Company in Pittsburgh went through its 17th day without any announcement of an expected break in the stalemate. The strike has cut industrial power and resulted in suspension of trolley and bus service.

Motion pictures: Pickets in Hollywood's AFL movie labor jurisdictional dispute switched their principal attention to Paramount studio, where peace officers prevented them from overturning an automobile. A delegation of Hollywood screen stars has made a plea to the AFL national convention in Chicago to set up machinery for adjudication of jurisdictional disputes.

Americans Break Up German Riot

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 10 (AP)—Heavily armed U. S. constabulary troops and field artillerymen quelled a riot tonight among German prisoners in a civilian internment camp in Darmstadt, the Third Army said.

The prisoners tore down a quarter-mile of interior fence. The situation was reported under control within 50 minutes after the American soldiers were called out.

IKE DINES AT NO. 10

CANADIAN BOYS JOIN U. S. ARMY

Over 100 Cross Border Illegally, Seek GI Benefits

DETROIT, Oct. 10 (AP)—E. E. Adcock, district immigration director here, said today he had ordered a "tightening up" on admission of Canadians to this country, because "more than 100" have crossed the border illegally to join the American army in recent months.

The situation came to light Tuesday, he said, when 18 Canadians were detained by immigration officers in a Toledo, Ohio, railroad station as they waited for a train for Cleveland, where they were to be inducted.

Adcock quoted the youths as saying they went to other cities to enlist because "it wasn't easy in Detroit."

In Toledo, H. L. Gustavson, Selective Service liaison officer for the area, said that all the youths had signed affidavits to the effect that they had lived 30 days in Lucas county and had Toledo addresses.

Gustavson added that the draft boards now have orders to clear all Canadians with immigration officers before registering them.

The Canadians sought to take advantage of the benefits of the GI bill and were under the impression they could speed up naturalization by service in the army, Adcock said they had told him.

Under an agreement between the United States and Canada, Adcock declared, the American army stopped enlisting Canadian resident citizens during the war and the ban still is in effect.

Canadians are only acceptable to the army if they have first been admitted for permanent residence by immigration authorities, and have actually lived in this country 30 days, Adcock explained.

"Army authorities will probably deal with the non-resident Canadians already inducted," Adcock declared.

Submarine Cruises North Pole Area On Secret Mission

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The navy today issued a belated account of a hush-hush submarine cruise July 15 to Aug. 22 which took its submarines on active duty closer to the North Pole than ever before.

Anti-submarine detection beams are seriously deflected by layers of seawater which vary with temperature and the navy said much information on this effect was obtained near Arctic ice floes.

Operating with four submarines of the Pacific fleet were an undisclosed number of long-range four-engine patrol bombers. Radio detection bouys were dropped by planes in the battle against Nazi submarines. The navy did not reveal whether these were used in the Arctic tests.

The cruise, billed as a "training and familiarization" trip, was kept top secret at the time. There were some leaks on the west coast and at Alaskan ports where the subs visited, but the detailed story was not told until today.

Farm Wife Admits Shotgun Slayings Of Her Two Babies

Caribou, Me., Oct. 10 (AP)—Mrs. Gretchen Richardson, 27-year-old farm wife, tearfully pleaded innocent today in municipal court to two charges of murder in the bloody shotgun slayings yesterday of her children, Jerry James, 4, and Priscilla May, 6, in the modest one-story Richardson home in the Wade section of nearby Washburn.

Judge Irvine E. Peterson ordered Mrs. Richardson held without bail for the November term of Arrostook county superior court.

PRISONERS ESCAPE

Milan, Mich., Oct. 10 (AP)—Three Canadian prisoners, serving terms for violation of immigration laws, escaped from Federal prison here tonight and state police set up road blocks in the area in an attempt to intercept them.

Republicans Score Victory In Alaska, First In 16 Years

Juneau, Alaska, Oct. 10 (AP)—Incomplete returns tonight indicated the Republicans scored a victory—their first in 16 years—by capturing the lower House of the territorial legislature, gaining five Senate seats (one short of an even break with the Democrats) and nabbing one territorial office, commissioner of labor.

The advisory vote was almost two to one in favor of statehood for Alaska.

Unofficial returns from all the territory's judicial divisions indicated the next House of Representatives will consist of 14 Republicans and 10 Democrats, and that the Senate will consist of nine Democrats and seven Republicans.

Territorial Delegate E. L. (Bob) Bartlett's overwhelming victory for return to Congress was the one bright spot for the Democratic party in Alaska. He was opposed by Almer J. Peterson, Anchorage.

WAGE CONTROL FUTURE CLOUDY

Resignation Of Board's Members Not Acted On By President

BY MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—President Truman left the future of pay controls in doubt tonight by making no decision on whether to accept or reject resignations of the wage stabilization board's industry members.

Mr. Truman told his news conference he has not made up his mind yet about the resignations submitted by A. Colman Barrett and Earle Cannon.

Some clue as to the board's future and as to whether there will be any change in the government's wage control program may be found in a statement to be issued by W. Willard Wirtz, chairman of the board. The President said he understood that Wirtz would make a statement later.

Pressed for some indication of when he will make a decision on the resignations, the chief executive replied that he is going to be deliberate about it. He recalled that he had rejected the resignations of the same two officials in July, and added, he may do this again.

Labor and industry leaders already are on record with demands that the board and wage controls be scrapped.

Chairman Wirtz told a reporter that "we are assuming" there will be no meetings of the panel's regional units until the status of the national board is clarified.

CREDIT BUREAU KNOWS PUBLIC

Confidential Reports On People's Habits Are Obtained

By MARC J. PARSONS

Don't look now but your credit is showing.

Even your best friends don't always know you as well as your local credit bureau. And what the credit bureau doesn't know already, it can find out in a very short time if it gets a legitimate request for the information.

In the files of the nation's 1400 associated credit bureaus is information on 50,000,000 people. Only established businesses dealing in credit have access to this information and then only for the purpose of establishing credit should such a request be made to them.

Most credit requests are for "trade clearances." These cover data already on file about any given person. Chances are that should you request credit and there is no information filed under your name, it will be assumed that your credit is good and the request will be granted.

Judgments Recorded

But any information filed there will be forwarded to the merchant from whom you request credit. This will include, if available, all charge accounts you already have and a record of your usual payments—30 days, 60 days, 90 days or unsatisfactory. If any judgments have been rendered against you for non-payment of bills records of these will be there. And if any newspapers have carried stories that in any way might reflect on your credit, these will probably be there.

In large metropolitan centers such as New York, credit information is teletyped to the stores making the request so that after you have asked to open a charge account and even before you can select that new dress or suit, the information necessary to make a credit rating is in the hands of the credit manager of the store.

In smaller centers, credit rating requests usually are telephoned to the credit bureaus.

If the information in the trade clearance isn't sufficient for a credit manager to make a decision, he can ask for a "special report." On such requests the credit bureaus do a thorough job of checking up on you.

Specialized "reporters" will make a check on your landlord, neighbors, grocery stores where you usually trade, neighborhood drug stores, your employer and anyone else that might know about you in a general way. They'll try to size up the type of home you have and how you care for it, how much rent you pay, how long you have lived there. Sometimes, in special cases, they'll go back as long as 10 years in your life, although five usually is long enough. They'll try to find out about your earnings if possible and perhaps even your hobbies.

Confidential Reports

Such reports are considered very confidential, and there has been no known cases in the history of the credit bureaus of misuse of this information.

You need not fear going into a strange city and asking for credit. It may take a little longer for your request to be filled. If you live in Morning Sun, Ia., and want to open an account in Pittsburgh, Pa., just give the Pittsburgh bureau enough time to check the Morning Sun bureau and the chances are you'll get the new charge account.

Retail stores in general are most interested in how you pay your bills at other stores. Finance companies are more concerned with law suits in which you may have been involved, and for them, most credit bureaus maintain a comprehensive file of every known law suit.

Here are a few simple rules that will almost automatically assure you of a good credit rating:

1. Pay all your bills promptly when due, including charge accounts, installments, bank notes, rent and utility bills.
2. Keep your personal bank account in good order.
3. Don't return an abnormal amount of merchandise after you have charged it.
4. Don't hide any pertinent information from stores where you are seeking credit.

Follow these rules and watch your store manager grin happily when you say "Charge it, please." You're a good risk and he wants your credit business.

DEATH FOR 718

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—The United Nations War Crimes Commission reported tonight 718 persons have received death sentences in Europe and the Far East for war crimes.

A total of 48 have been acquitted and 992 imprisoned, the commission said in a progress report.

PLANNING MILL SHAVINGS USED

Waste Material Utilized To Make Molded Boards

Boston, (SS.)—Molded boards of soft wood shavings from a planning mill can be produced at a price which can compete with plywood or lumber in certain instances, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was told today by Robert A. Caughey of the Southerland Mills, Wilton, N. H.

These shavings are now largely a waste product.

By the use of the proper amount and type of resin as a binder, and by curing under proper conditions of temperature and pressure, he said, it is possible to obtain a molded product which has very high resistance to water, very high strength and hardness, and which is eminently suitable for a wide variety of applications. Sawdust and other wood wastes can also be used to make lumber substitutes.

Mr. Caughey reviewed many of the new processes for using wood wastes in making plastics, or fillers in plastics. He called attention to the present tremendous waste in connection with lumbering and woodworking industries. The wood wastes in terms of pounds of material, he declared, amount to at least 80 per cent of the salable material produced, and this does not include the logging waste left in the woods.

The industry to which the waste wood situation presents the greatest challenge, he asserted, is the plastics industry. The wood in the form of waste is still sound material with its original basic properties of strength and chemical resistance. The only disadvantage lies in its form, it being generally in such small pieces that it cannot be worked up into any usable product. It therefore remains to convert these particles into large pieces of some practical value.

Up until the present time the most important use of wood in the plastics industry has been as a filler, he stated. Selected wood waste in the form of shavings or sawdust is ground to a flour. Molding compounds are prepared by adding resin, plasticizers, lubricants and color to the wood flour. In the case of wood-flour filled phenol-formaldehyde molding compounds, the resin component may vary from 30 per cent to 60 per cent, the major portion of the rest being the filler.

NATION'S 1946 CROP OUTPUT TOPS RECORDS

tion, it appears that this year's food crop will be 19 percent above last year and 14 percent above average. Growing conditions were said to have been favorable for new crop citrus fruits in all states but especially in Florida. A record citrus crop was said to be in prospect from the 1946 bloom.

Abundant supplies of fresh vegetables were said to be in prospect for the fall months. Likewise, the production outlook for most processing vegetables improved in September.

Milk production during September was about 2 percent below the record of the same month last year, but was obtained from 4 percent fewer cows. Egg production fell four percent below that of September last year, but still was 23 percent above average.

Clothing Workers Agree On $5 Raise

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (CIO) and the Clothing Manufacturers' Association of the U. S. announced jointly today they had agreed on a $5 weekly cost of living adjustment for 150,000 men's and boys' clothing workers.

A 65-cents-hourly minimum wage also was established under the agreement, the announcement said. The union members are employed in 1,600 factories and shops throughout the country.

Raymond H. Reiss, president of the Manufacturers' group, said the labor costs in an average men's suit by 12 per cent.

Hudson Shuts Down For Lack Of Steel

Detroit, Oct. 10 (AP)—Hudson Motor Car Co. today announced that because of a shortage of sheet steel all operations would be shut down from tonight until Monday.

A similar one-day closing was announced yesterday by the Ford Motor Co. The Ford shutdown affects approximately 100,000 workers, the Hudson closing 13,000.

Chrysler Corp. and Briggs Manufacturing Co. already have begun a series of progressive layoffs expected ultimately to affect 30,000 to 40,000 employees.

Only a small number of employees work in automotive plants on Saturday.

Husband, 50, Hunted In Ax-Slaying Dies Under Freight Train

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 10 (AP)—As members of a posse watched, J. Wiley Smith, 50-year-old farmer who was wanted in connection with the ax-slaying of his wife, threw himself beneath the wheels of a freight train today. Wake county coroner I. M. Cheek said the death was suicide.

Smith, the father of four children, was the object of a search begun 24 hours prior to his death when the badly hacked body of his 43-year-old wife, Mrs. Vera Olive Smith, was found in a tobacco barn near the Smith residence outside Willow Springs, N. C.

German V-2 Rocket Kept Up 11 Minutes In U. S. Army Tests

White Sands, N. M., Oct. 10 (AP)—The armed forces sent a German V-2 Rocket 102 miles high today at the rate of 3,600 miles per hour and kept it aloft for 11 minutes with special devices which slowed its descent.

The warhead carried cameras and various instruments, including improved geiger counters for obtaining cosmic ray data. These instruments were installed under the direction of the Naval Research Laboratories, Washington, D. C.

Initial tests were made with new devices which ejected at selected points in the missile's downward trajectory. These were designed to slow down its velocity and protect the instruments.

Col. Harold R. Turner, commanding officer, said it was too early to determine whether these experiments were completely successful, but said preliminary information indicated at least partial success.

Abandoned Baby Waits For Father In Lansing Hospital

Lansing, Oct. 10 (AP)—A six months old "Baby Hoo" was still waiting at St. Lawrence hospital here today for his father to come back for him while police sought the missing parent who had abandoned the child at the hospital Wednesday evening.

The baby was brought to the hospital Wednesday night by a man about 35 years old, presumably the father, who told the admitting clerk that a local physician had instructed him to hospitalize the child. When the clerk left the room to check her records the father disappeared and failed to return to claim the baby.

Police reported they had no clues to the baby's identity.

The president also declined to comment when asked whether he believed that public "dissatisfaction" over the meat shortage is "likely to be reflected" in the November congressional elections.

Beef packers formally petitioned for decontrol today with sworn statements that there are 34 per cent more cattle on the hoof now than before the war and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson promised a quick answer.

The packers' chairman, R. G. Haynie of Chicago, offered plenty of meat "very soon"—perhaps before the November elections—if the price controls are removed.

The decontrol petition to Anderson took a crack at "uninformed persons" who say the mid-summer lapse of ceilings led to heavy slaughter of the herds and cited the agriculture department's own figures as showing fewer cattle and calves killed last June, July and August than in the same months of 1945.

One unconfirmed report gaining some circulation was that a plan is under consideration by which the government might guarantee to livestock owners who market their animals now any higher prices which might result later from removal of ceilings or other factors. The plan would be similar to that by which wheat growers who released their grain were reimbursed for future profits they failed to realize.

Officials commented, however, that the government has no funds at present by which it could operate such a program.

Veal Goes Up

Another possible source of more meat, but a minor one, was an offer by the Argentine ambassador, Oscar Ivanissevich, of immediate shipment of 4,000,000 pounds of his country's canned meat. He made his offer to Anderson, with whom he had a conference. This

Draft Quotas Cut; Million Volunteer

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Army has cut its November draft call to 15,000 men, the smallest since selective service started before Pearl Harbor.

The October quota was 35,000 and September's 25,000.

Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, war department personnel director, said the record-breaking enlistment of nearly one million volunteers in the last year was the primary reason for the reduction.

TAX SPLIT OPPOSED

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 10 (AP)—Republican gubernatorial candidate Kim Sigler was disclosed today as being unofficially opposed to a proposed partial diversion of state sales tax revenues to local units of government.

Sigler, who has not taken an official position on the issue, made his views known in a letter to the Saginaw Citizens Tax Study Committee.

would make only a small dent in the shortage, however, and Argentina already is shipping canned meat here—August shipments were 1,920,772 pounds.

The OPA made some adjustments in retail meat ceilings during the day to iron out various inequities but said the action had no connection with the shortage. The changes, effective Monday, increase prices of the two top grades of veal an average of seven and eight cents a pound and revise many beef and pork prices one or two cents, home higher and some lower than present ceilings. Ceilings also were raised on wholesale veal carcasses, but no changes were made in livestock ceilings.

Shortly before Mr. Truman's news conference, the CIO Packing House Workers Union issued a statement calling on the government to determine whether "packers are guilty of creating a fraud on the public through monopolistic tactics by withholding the livestock supply at its source."

BUY SPEED SHIP
Iron Mountain—Purchase by Trooper Jack Nemrava, of the Iron Mountain detachment of the state police, and Robert Morrell, 501 Marquette boulevard, Kingsford, the latter an instructor at the Northland Airport, of a speedy PT-19 Army training plane, was announced today by Walter Bourdlaies, manager of the airport.

The plane, to be used by both men, will be kept at the Northland Airport, on highway US-2, where Trooper Nemrava is taking flight instruction. He expects soon to obtain his private pilot's license, for which he has been studying for some time.

HAS POOR STREET LIGHTS
Iron Mountain—Any improvement in Iron Mountain's street-lighting program, labeled by Alderman Hallman as "the worst of any city in upper Michigan and Wisconsin," will have to await the proposed widening and paving of Stephenson avenue, from the Hydraulics cut-off north to a point near the filtration plant, it was brought out at last night's council meeting.

"Everywhere we go we hear the same thing about our street-lighting system," Alderman Hallman said, "and from all we hear about it, Iron Mountain has the poorest lighting program of any city in upper Michigan and northern Wisconsin."

"Obviously, our street-lighting is all out of whack, principally because it doesn't actually light the streets. The standards we now have on our main business thoroughfares are outmoded. Even the globes hide the light they are supposed to give. The streets are dark, even on shopping nights, and the program in the residential areas is equally inadequate. Something should be done about it."

Expanding Tourist Trade

CHARLES Ziegler, Michigan highway commissioner, speaking at the George Bishop memorial dedication at Rapid River Wednesday, traced the history of highway construction in the Upper Peninsula in the past 5 years. Most significantly, Ziegler pointed out that the mushrooming growth of the U. P.'s tourist industry has paralleled the development of good highways.

The report on highway paving in the peninsula within a span of 25 years is interesting. In 1921, there were only eight miles of paved roads in the entire Upper Peninsula and now there are over 600 miles of concrete, 500 miles of black-top and 600 miles of improved gravel-surfaced highways, Ziegler revealed. There is still much highway building to be done in the Upper Peninsula, a fact that is recognized by the state highway department.

There is no way of determining just how many auto travelers visited the Upper Peninsula this year, but the figure given by Ziegler on car-ferry traffic—350,000 cars up to October 1—provides at least a basis for estimate. Presumably Ziegler was referring to automobiles ferried both ways across the Straits of Mackinac, which would indicate that roughly half, or 175,000 cars entered the peninsula by way of the straits.

More travelers enter the peninsula at other points of entry, particularly Menominee, Ironwood, Iron Mountain, Iron River and Watersmeet than at the straits entry. And in addition, there are other points of entry at Sault Ste. Marie, Manistiquette, Crystal Falls and Marquette.

Based on the figures presented by Ziegler for car traffic at St. Ignace, it is obvious that the travel through the Upper Peninsula has been stupendous.

And still, as P. J. Hoffmaster, director of the Michigan Department of Conservation, pointed out at Rapid River, the development of the Upper Peninsula as a great playground is just in its infancy. It will grow and grow as more facilities are provided to accommodate a greater number of visitors, as more and better roads are built, and as more airports are provided to handle the increased flow of air traffic.

Behind the Iron Curtain

THE remarkable eye-witness story of "The People Behind the Iron Curtain," which John Strohm has written for NEA Service, comes at a particularly fortunate time and with a particularly comforting message.

In a period of international tension it rekindles our admiration for the Russian people, as distinct from their government. And it presents in a surprisingly favorable light a government which allowed Strohm to go where he pleased in the Soviet Union and to emerge with story and pictures uncensored.

John Strohm talked and listened and took pictures without hindrance. And he has set down what he saw and heard in a vivid and credibly unbiased manner. The fact that Strohm is a midwestern farmer and farm magazine editor, a Baptist and a Republican, lends weight to the assumption that he did not go to Russia with a load of favorable preconceptions about Communism.

Strohm found a courageous people fighting another battle against the wreckage left by a ruthless enemy and the continuing hardship induced by the circumstance of their history and their form of government.

He found an economy set back to pre-revolutionary levels, with sickness and flails doing the work of the combines that the Nazis stole.

He found spades and oxen and camels where there had been plows and tractors and horses. He found women doing most of the farm work under pitifully primitive conditions.

He found a people living on subsistence rations, with supplementary food costing at least ten times our most inflated prices. He found the general level of wages far below ours. He found hours and working conditions which would come close to causing a revolution here at home.

But Strohm also found cheerfulness and friendliness. In spite of the bitter anti-American attacks of the Soviet press, he was met at every turn by expressions of thanks for America's help to the Russian people during the war.

Everywhere he went, and from almost everyone he spoke with, he heard assurance that the Russian people do not want war. It was the message which, time and again, he was urged to bring back to the American people. In turn he gave like assurance of the American people's overwhelming desire for peace.

The Foreign Minister of Byelorussia gave Strohm a brief but apt summing-up of the situation. "It looks like our job is to educate the diplomats," he said. "Our diplomats are our main problem—they must be shown the road to peace."

The difficulty of that job obsesses most of the world today. Here in America we may speak our minds in an attempt to do that job. But what of Russia, where criticism of government policy is a serious offense?

Strohm does not answer that. But he gives the strong impression that the Russian people do not only desire peace. They have a fierce and positive will against war. Their reconstruction problem is enormous. Their economy is at a low ebb. Their present existence is hard and discouraging, and they seem to be living largely by sweat and hope.

That seems to be the life and the spirit in Russia today. Undoubtedly the Russian government is well aware that any attempt to lead the Russian people into an aggressive war would be a perilously unpopular move. And no matter how rigid the controls and how numerous the police, even the strictest dictatorship must retain the active good will of a majority of its people.

Strohm makes a convincing case for the hope of American-Soviet peace. Certainly, if his testimony is as correct as it seems, there is at least no problem of "war with Russia" behind the iron curtain.

High Land Prices

CAPPER'S Farmer has issued another warning to prospective buyers of farm lands, the prices of which are now 71 per cent above the 1935-39 average.

The agricultural magazine points to what happened to buyers of land at high prices after World War I, and declares that this tragedy should not be allowed to happen again.

There are several reasons why the present bidding up of land prices promises trouble for American agriculture. Costs of operating a farm are up. The chances are that prices of farm products, if and when they fall, will go down faster than the wages of farm labor or the prices of the products the farm has to buy. High production of crops that prevailed during the war likely cannot continue indefinitely.

Money seems to be cheap, nowadays, but this does not justify the buying of farm lands at exorbitant prices.

A Chance to Work

THE U. S. Employment Service, with the cooperation of the various veterans organizations, is conducting a campaign this week to obtain employment for the physically handicapped persons.

Many of the physically handicapped are casualties of World War II. The Escanaba office of the USES alone has the names of 42 disabled veterans in its files.

In a recent issue of the Press there appeared a story concerning how an Escanaba veteran, confined to a wheelchair, began making billboards, other leather goods and novelties to pass away the time. He has developed ability in the making of these articles and has found a market for them. He is now planning to expand the operations of his small home industry.

Throughout the country, there are many disabled veterans who are not content to remain idle the rest of their lives. They want to become useful members of society. There are still many jobs they can do, if only they are given a chance to develop the required skills. Some of them eventually are able to do particular jobs better than unimpaired persons.

Employers who are willing to give a physically handicapped person an opportunity to do some useful work are urged to contact the USES office.

More Shortages

IN this great country, long the envy of the rest of the world as the land of plenty, it is difficult to understand, or for that matter, even to imagine the pathetic situation that is now unfolding from coast to coast—long queues of shoppers frantically searching from store to store for such commonplace commodities as meat, soap, shortening and toilet tissue.

We read about these things occurring in foreign lands during the war but few of us realized that it could ever happen here. But it is happening here, growing in severity with each passing day, and the nation's leadership is pathetically unable to find any solution to the problem.

Argentina, one of the world's greatest producers and exporters of meat, has offered to help out in the American meat crisis, but in the face of the most critical meat famine in modern American history, we continue to shy away from Argentine beef. As further evidence of the inconsistency of our viewpoint, we plead with England to loan us 20 million pounds of Argentine beef to feed our soldiers overseas. We won't take Argentine beef from Argentina but will beg England to loan us Argentine beef.

Although virtually every meat production expert in the country has reported that the current meat shortage is caused by the OPA, the government refuses to decontrol meat so the shortage continues and grows worse.

It is, indeed, a sad situation.

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington.—This column is a free offering to the social historian who will try at some future date to interpret the time in which we live. While the scope of the picture is small, it may throw a pinpoint of light on cause and effect in a larger scale.

In our neighborhood is a market to which farm women come twice a week, bringing every sort of good thing. On these rare October mornings, it looks especially rich and fine. Besides the dressed chickens, the rolls of country butter, the fruits and vegetables of the harvest season, there are late flowers—cosmos and chrysanthemums.

The place is filled with a bustle and stir as city people move up and down the aisles, the women with that early-morning predatory look, the males slightly abashed, realizing they really do not belong.

—EGGS GOING UP—

Farm woman: Well, I hear you've been away. How're things over in Europe?
Reporter: They're a little better, I think. I didn't see very much or stay very long.
Farm woman: They certainly haven't been getting any better over here.

Reporter: So everybody seems to think. Can you let us have some eggs today?

Farm woman: Yes, I've got some eggs today. They're 80 cents a dozen now. High? Yes, of course it's high. But then, so is the price of everything we have to buy. Eggs have gone up 25 cents since the last time you were here.

The little group around the counter takes up this theme. One woman says that she heard from her sister in Iowa that eggs were 90 cents a dozen out there.

"I asked by husband the other night—we've been married 20 years," she says, "if he could ever remember when things cost more, and he thought he could remember when eggs cost $1 a dozen. That was back in 1928."

It was a long time ago, we agree. And 1928 was a year of some importance. It was the year when the boom of the '20s reached its crest, just before the wave toppled and fell.

From eggs, the conversation goes to chickens. The farm woman at the next counter has a large baking hen and some medium-sized stevers. The baking hen will run to about $5 or maybe a little more. "Why, we used to get a turkey for that," says the customer, with surprise and indignation in her voice.

But the farm woman reminds her that, too, was a long time ago, long before the war. She tells how a friend went into a chain store to buy a frying chicken, a small, skinny one, and it was 95 cents a pound.

—A SAMPLE OF INFLATION—

You can hear that same conversation a thousand times over in every corner of the United States. We are discovering what inflation means when it gets down to the corner-grocery level.

The prosperous middle and upper-income groups are perhaps still buying as freely as they did six months to a year ago. But the important question is what will happen to the purchasing power of the great mass of Americans at the lowest income level.

How much butter can they buy at 93 cents a pound? How many eggs at 80 cents a dozen? How much milk at 21 cents a quart? Behind all the big words of the economic theorists, it is on the answers to those simple questions that our destiny will turn in the coming months.

Dr. George Gallup solemnly reports, on the basis of a nationwide poll, that price control is not as popular today as it was five months ago. As though that should surprise anyone!

Price control five months ago was still relatively effective. Then came the struggle in Congress, with the pressure lobbyists riding hard on the price-control act. Even though the administration had passed out fairly substantial price increases, they were not satisfied.

—PRICE CONTROL IS SHAM—

The result was the pathetic compromise which the president finally and reluctantly signed. Price control today is a fraud and a sham. Why should anyone be for it? It seems a long time ago, in the middle of the struggle for effective price control, that we were told that price increases would be moderate if controls were taken off.

The social historian will have his statistics, his charts and his graphs. But he will learn just as much if he listens in on the conversation when city and country meet as buyer and seller.

Earley, a North Carolina pastor.

St. Louis: Will you please inform us whether Eddie Cantor is the real name of the famous singing comedian?—G. F. C.

Answer: Mr. Cantor, in his characteristically friendly way, has given me permission to quote him as follows:

"My grandmother's name was Cantor. Having lost my mother and father when I was two years old, I took the name of my grandmother when I registered in school at the age of six. My father was a cantor by profession, but his name was Itzkowitz."

Incidentally, the name Cantor was a happy and appropriate choice for Eddie. Cantor is Latin for "a singer." (In a synagogue, the cantor is a soloist who sings liturgical music.)

Cantor is from the Latin canere, "to sing," from which we also have the words cantata and chant.

Rochester: What does the name Niagara (Falls) mean?—C. McN.

Answer: Niagara evolved as a French corruption of the name of an Indian village, Ongniahra, "a point of land cut in two."

THE RIGHT TO VOTE —There may be persons in the townships who will lose their right to vote unless they register before Wednesday, Oct. 16. If they do, it will be largely because of their own negligence and irresponsibility, since there have been repeated and ample warnings that a complete re-registration of township voters is required before that date.

Clerks in every township in Michigan have directed attention to the re-registration deadline by posters, newspaper advertisements, and information for news stories. There may be some persons who may not yet know of the necessity for re-registering if they expect to vote in the general election Nov. 5. If there are, they certainly should be in the minority.

HOW IT HAPPENED —In the past the townships did not have what is described a permanent voter registration such as most of the cities have established. The state legislature in its session last January adopted legislation requiring the townships to establish permanent voter registrations, which would require all voters in the townships to re-register.

In Delta and a few other counties the township clerks began the re-registration before the spring primary election, and then it was announced by the attorney general that the law would not become effective until later in the summer. Re-registration was not required to vote in the primary, he announced.

The re-registration of voters had to be completed, however, by Oct. 16 if the rural citizens of Michigan expected to vote in the November 5 election, and that is why so much emphasis is being placed on the matter now. The time is drawing short. Persons who fail to re-register by the deadline date will be unable to vote next month.

NOT THE CITY —City Clerk Carl Anderson said that many persons in Escanaba have apparently not understood that city voters do not have to re-register. The city has a permanent registration, and if you voted within the past three years your registration remains in effect. If you live in the city of Escanaba or in Gladstone or other cities where a permanent voting registration is maintained, you may disregard the Oct. 16 deadline.

YOUR RESPONSIBILITY —You may be one of the 50-per cent Americans who vote only half the time, or a complete zero who votes not at all. If you are it's about time to come out of hiding and exercise the right to vote—one of the most important responsibilities of a citizen in a democracy.

Too many Americans have the naive conception of government as something apart from themselves. Government, they say, is "those fellows" in Washington, or in Lansing. How "those fellows" got there seems never to occur to them as one of the shining examples of government by the people.

There is no necessity to take the political stump for your favorite party or favorite candidate unless you feel inclined—but it is necessary that you vote when election time rolls around. If you don't vote you are one of those shady half-citizens, who accept all Am-

REGISTRATION WEEK —Governor Harry F. Kelly by proclamation has designated this period Registration Week. In his proclamation he says in part:

"The general election to be held Nov. 5, 1946, the first such election since the end of World War II, promises to be one of the most important in the history of our state and nation. On that day the people will choose the leaders—a United States Senator, seventeen representatives in congress, a governor, other state officials, members of the legislature, and numerous county officials—upon whom will fall the principal burden of solving manifold problems which have developed as the natural aftermath of that war.

"The decisions to be made in the months following that election will affect the destinies of every citizen of Michigan, and so it is imperative that every eligible citi-

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington.—Here is the inside story on how President Truman happened to issue his recent statement on Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Pearson

About a week before the statement, Dave Niles, one of Truman's White House secretaries, tipped him to the fact that Governor Dewey was speaking before the United Jewish appeal on the week-end of the Jewish holiday and would make a strong statement for Jewish migration. Niles suggested that Truman beat Dewey to the punch and reemphasize his own previous position for Jewish migration.

Accordingly, the White House asked acting Secretary of State Will Clayton to draft a statement for the president to be issued on Oct. 4, the eve of Yom Kippur. Clayton turned the matter over to Loy Henderson, head of the State Department's Near East division, who has been accused of being pro-Arab, and who came up with a milk-and-water statement calculated not to offend the British and Arabs.

When this went over to the White House, it got the immediate thumbsdown sign. By this time Under-Secretary Dean Acheson had returned and taken over the helm in the State Department. He sat up most of one night redrafting and toughening up the statement on Palestine, which Truman finally issued just two days before Dewey's speech.

NOTE—Having been beaten to the punch, Dewey came out not for the migration of 100,000 Jews but for "hundreds of thousands."

—KANGAROO SHUNS WHITE HOUSE—

When the crew of the Navy's Truculent Turtle visited the White House the other day, President Truman inquired at some length about "Joey," the nine-month-old Kangaroo the fliers brought back for the Washington zoo.

"We thought about bringing Joey over to see you," Flight Commander Thomas D. Davies explained. "But she's hard to handle. You have to hold her by the tail and she claws like the devil. It's a full-time job for one man to carry her around."

"However, that isn't the main reason we didn't bring her with us," continued Davies. "You see, Joey isn't housebroken yet, and we figured that the White House wasn't a good place to bring her under those conditions."

Truman said he quite understood.

Admiral Nimitz, who accompanied the navy fliers, then told about a baby kangaroo who kept jumping out of his mother's pouch. Tiring of putting him back in, the papa kangaroo cuffed his ears and told him to stay put.

"Don't blame me, papa," moaned the little kangaroo. "Mama's got the hiccups."

—TRUMAN LIKES TO BE FRIENDLY—

One reason the president so often finds himself in hot water is that he isn't quite tough enough with his own friends. In the end he can say "no" and say it with vigor, but when a friend like Henry Wallace tackles him on foreign policy, or when Congressman John McCormack of Massachusetts tackles him on meat, his first inclination is to go along.

For instance, when House Majority Leader McCormack publicly urged the president to remove ceilings on meat prices he thought he was doing so with the president's okay. But after the McCormack statement, OPA Chief Paul Porter called and told the president he had heard that the McCormack statement was encouraged by the White House.

"I can't have any hope of winning the fight to keep prices down when we get statements like that from supposed responsible leaders of the administration—and especially when you advise such statements," Porter said.

The president replied that he had been in contact with McCormack, but that McCormack must have misunderstood him. He had sympathized with McCormack but had never meant for McCormack to issue such a statement. Later in the day he made it very plain in tough language to the nation that he stood four-square behind Porter and the OPA.

—"THIS IS POLITICS" DEPARTMENT—

Although he has spent his two years in the Senate fighting reactionary Republicans, liberal GOP Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon is one of the most active campaigners in the Northwest for republican candidates. He has joined with reactionary Senators Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska in speaking for Ham Fish's friend, Henry Dworshak, running for the Senate in Idaho, and in urging the defeat of Senator Hugh Mitchell and Representatives Coffee and De Lacy in Washington—three Progressive leaders upon whom Morse always counted for support as a Senator.

Drew Pearson's repeated publication of important diplomatic documents has aroused such international interest that Punch, well-known British Humor magazine, this week carried the following: "There is an extraordinary report current in Washington that an important document that was to have been published by a columnist has come into the hands of the State Department."

That day, Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson arrived late at a press conference, and explained his tardiness by quoting Punch's reference to Pearson's publication of official documents. "Is it true," asked one reporter, "that the department has come into possession of a document Pearson is about to publish?"

"That's why I'm late," replied Acheson. "I was checking on that report. It's not true."

STEDDICK GETS 1 TO 4 YEARS

Three Others Are Given Probationary Terms In Circuit Court

Antwine J. Steddick, 41, of Florence, Wis., yesterday was sentenced by Judge Thomas J. Landers in circuit court to serve 1 to 4 years in state branch prison at Marquette for forgery. Steddick pleaded guilty to four forgery counts and the sentence was the same for each, with sentences to run concurrently.

Steddick was arrested by Escanaba police last summer after he had cashed several checks in the city, forging the names of local men on the checks. The total amount of the checks forged and cashed was about $200.

Raymond Gruen and Edward Delohary, two youths of Bark River Rt. 2, were given two-year probationary terms each, and must pay $50 costs each within 60 days. They had pleaded guilty to the theft of milk from the Whitney farm south of Escanaba.

Shortly after sentence had been passed in court here they were arrested on a Menominee county warrant charging them with the theft of milk and receiving stolen property. The complainant was Alfred Schoen, operator of a fur farm at Perronville. The youths were taken to Menominee for arraignment.

Mrs. Hattie Deragon, 22, of Harris, who was arraigned on a charge of being a disorderly person, third offense, was placed on probation for two years.

No further jury cases are scheduled at this term and Judge Landers yesterday dismissed the jurors. In the matter of the petition of John Anguillm and Dan Raess, who seek an order authorizing a delayed appeal from a justice court decision, the court received briefs and argument in court by counsel was unnecessary.

Judge Landers is presiding in court here because of the illness of Judge Frank A. Bell of Negaunee. Judge Landers' home is Bessemer, not Detroit, as previously reported.

Kiwanis Anniversary Dinner To Be Held Oct. 14 At Marquette

Zerbel, 920 South 13th street, Mr. Walter G. Pearson, 316 South 15th street.

Delegates from Michigan Clubs of the Wisconsin district have been invited to attend the anniversary dinner. Rev. James G. Ward will act as master of ceremonies, and District Governor Clemens E. Luek will be the principal speaker.

Army Enlistments Shatter Records

Regular army enlistments in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan during September shattered all previous records for any single month. Lt. Col. Ralph P. Weaver, Commanding Officer of the Wisconsin-Upper Peninsula Recruiting District, announced today. A total of 1,679 recruits were signed up, topping last month's previous high of 915.

The Milwaukee Recruiting Office set the pace with 363 enlistments, but the Upper Peninsula recruiters, based on quota percentages, turned in the outstanding record. They enlisted 187 recruits, more than doubling their original quota of 75. Milwaukee's quota was set at 250. Each of the 10 main stations in the Wisconsin-Upper Peninsula Recruiting District exceeded its quota, with Fond du Lac and Superior also doubling theirs.

NOTICE

WELLS TOWNSHIP ELECTORS

By Official Proclamation Of Harry F. Kelly,
Governor Of Michigan, October 10 to 16th, inclusive is Registration Week In Michigan.

If you have not re-registered, please do so at once. Senator Vandenberg, now attending the Paris Peace Conference writes: "I am afraid that many people do not understand that they will lose their right to vote in November if they do not register. They will disfranchise themselves. One of the things we are struggling for over here in post-war Europe is to get FREE BALLOTS into the hands of FREE ELECTORS. Upon our success in this regard may well depend the fate of several European countries. I earnestly urge that every possible effort be made to acquaint all our Michigan voters, regardless of Party, with this new re-registration requirement so that no citizen will be unaware of the fact that unless he re-registers at once he will be as ballotless on November 5th as if he lived in one of these enslaved European minorities."

Senator Vandenberg's message is to the point; the last day for registration is October 16th, if you have not already registered.

DO IT NOW.

GOV. DEWEY AND TAFT DISAGREE

Rift Between Top Rank
Republicans Widens
Over Nazi Trials

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Washington (AP)—A top-bracket Republican rift between Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio deepened when the senator assailed the war crime trials as "novel and hypocritical."

Taft thus renewed and broadened a charge he made over the weekend. Dewey already had taken issue with him once, declaring nobody could have any sympathy for "Nazis leaders who brought such agony upon the world."

As Democrats cheered from the sidelines at evidence of a brisk row between two GOP possibilities for the 1948 presidential nomination, there were these developments in the 1946 congressional campaign:

1. President Truman worked out a schedule for out-of-town appearances which include no stops along the political speaking circuit. He will go home to vote on Nov. 5 and visit the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., Nov. 16.

2. A prediction of a Republican victory in November came from Senator Ralph O. Brewster (R-Me.), just back from a swing around the country. He says: "If the trend continues we'll carry the senate and house."

Taft set off a ruckus in his own party Saturday by terming the Nuernberg trials, which resulted in death sentences for 12 Nazis, a miscarriage of justice and violation of a fundamental principle of American law that no one can be tried under a law enacted subsequent to the offense.

In a statement in which he was joined by Irving W. Ives, Republican candidate for the senate in New York, Dewey said yesterday the German war criminals got a "fair trial."

Taft followed through with another statement, issued through his office here, saying he had "no intention of making any political issue of the matter but that 'the whole plan of the Nuernberg and Tokyo trials was extremely unfortunate.'"

"I do not criticize the courts for the convictions," he said, "but rather the whole novel and hypocritical procedure of the victors trying the vanquished for the crime of making war, under the form of judicial procedure."

Detroit Skid Row Stumblebums Pay Tribute To Friend

By ARTHUR W. EVERETT
Detroit (AP)—The stumblebums shuffled hats in hand today from Detroit's notorious "Skid Row" to pay their last respects to Henry F. Milans.

The one-time ace newspaperman, abandoned as a hopeless drunkard nearly half a century ago, died in Chicago this week at the age of 85.

At his own request, they brought him back to Skid Row to pause for the last time among the hapless men and women who knew and loved him.

His bier, banked with flowers, rested on the stage of the Salvation Army Bowery corps citadel, a few steps from the sidewalks of Michigan avenue.

The door to the cool, quiet amphitheater closed out the raucous blare of the juke boxes in the nearby gin mills. The men and women weaving unsteadily through the door and past the bier wiped their eyes and noses with furtive hands. Then they stumbled back out into the noisy, sunlit September afternoon.

Henry F. Milans' story, as told by his friend, Capt. Tom Crocker of the Bowery Salvation Army Corps, was briefly this:

He was an able New York newspaperman a half century ago—Salvation Army legend has it that he "once sat in the chair of Horace Greeley," founder and editor of what is now the New York Herald-Tribune.

But whisky cost Milans his job, his wife and his self respect.

At Bellevue hospital, Capt. Crocker said, New York physicians doomed him to "die drunk."

On a cold Thanksgiving night 35 years ago, Henry Milans was caught in a Salvation Army "boozers' roundup" and found himself inside a bowery citadel.

According to Crocker, Milans was "converted" and made a clean break with his past. He never took another drink.

He founded a successful printing business and made a modest fortune. He was reconciled with his wife.

In gratitude, Milans remained close to the Salvation Army. He wrote a weekly column of encouragement in the Army's newspaper "The War Cry."

He became especially close to the derelicts who drift along Detroit's Skid Row. He helped to set up the Detroit Bowery Corps for these down-and-outers and knew and spoke their language.

After the services the body will be taken to Hartford, Conn., to be interred beside his wife.

Broken Insulators Interrupt Electric Service Last Night

Three broken insulators on an Upper Michigan Power & Light company electric power line last night caused an interruption in electric service in Escanaba and other areas in the county served by the company. The insulators apparently had been shattered by bullets from a light rifle.

When rainfall came last evening an electric short was created on the line where the insulators were broken, and automatic switches halted service to prevent further damage. In Escanaba the power was off from about 6:45 to 6:55 p. m., but service in rural areas was interrupted for a longer time. Repairs were all completed by about 9 o'clock.

The place where the trouble occurred was on the power line on the south side of the Escanaba river near the upper dam.

a short time ago announced a new era in the retail distribution of grocery products. The response was all that we could have hoped for. In fact, it was terrific. Orders poured in from all parts of the city . . . many from people who wanted deliveries of the cases of canned fruits and vegetables which we advertised for sale. To those who were disappointed we can only express our sincerest apologies. We just do not have facilities for delivering, and even if we had, the small margin of profit made on these goods would make a free delivery impossible.

Times Change, Dad Minds The Baby Now

BY RUTH MULLETT
In the old days Papa had his night out with the boys and Mama wouldn't dream of spending an evening with the girls, leaving Papa at home as a baby-sitter.

But times have changed. Now the girls are going in for evening parties and get-togethers. It started during the war, when lonely wives had to occupy their evenings somehow, so switched their bridge-playing from afternoon to night. And they've stayed with the altered schedule.

One reason may be that war turned many young husbands into home-lovers who would rather sit at home with the evening paper and the radio than go to a movie, with the result that their wives get an over-dose of sitting at home.

The other reason is the scarcity of baby-sitters. It's a problem for Mama to find somebody to stay with the kids in the afternoon. But going out in the evening is a cinch. Papa can baby-sit.

Hubby Doesn't Mind
The husbands apparently aren't objecting to the baby-sitting arrangement, probably for two very good reasons.

It lets them out of gossipy bridge sessions.

And the wife who has her evening out can't very well object to a husband's weekly poker night. So, unless you don't mind being thought old-fashioned, don't turn down an evening invitation with the explanation: "I'd love to come—but George will be home."

The modern wife will answer: "That's perfect. Then you won't have to scare up a baby-sitter."

Miss LaCarte And
Walter W. Bittner
Married Recently

Miss Lina Adele LaCarte, daughter of Mose LaCarte of Cornell, became the bride of Walter William Bittner, also of Cornell, at a recent ceremony performed by the Rev. A. A. Schabow at St. Paul's Lutheran church at Hyde.

The bride wore a gown of white lace styled with a long train. Her finger-tip veil was attached to a heart-shaped coronet, and she wore a double strand of pearls. Pink and white roses formed her bouquet.

Gertrude Bittner and Anna Delvaux were the bride's attendants. The matron of honor wore a gown of yellow marquisette, a short matching veil attached to a head-dress of blue ostrich feathers, and carried yellow and white roses and gladioli. The bridesmaid's gown was of blue net, and her brief veil was attached to a coronet of blue flowers. Her flowers were roses and gladioli.

Gust Delvaux served as best man, and Ernest LaCarte was the usher.

Mrs. Bittner attended the wedding wearing a blue crepe dress with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, 65 guests attended a wedding dinner at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The table was decorated with a color scheme of yellow, blue and pink, with a large cake as the centerpiece. A wedding dance was held in Escanaba at the Croatian hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bittner are making their home at 1410 North 16th street. The bridegroom was discharged this year after serving for three and one-half years in the army. The bride, before her marriage, was employed by the Deer-free company.

BL ALICIA HART
Kept captive in a pillow case or muslin bag through the laundering process, exquisite lingerie, neckwear or hankies can claim that adjective longer.

Tie the washables in a bag, then dunk it in a basin of lukewarm suds and swish. Rinse your imprisoned pretties just as you would if they were free—in enough changes of water to get rid of all soap.

If lacy pieces need more tender care than this, there's still another protective step to take which will see them safely through the hazards of ironing. Before washing, baste the piece to a white cloth. When ready to iron, turn the backing cloth to the iron. This will save the precious piece of finery beneath many a broken thread.

August Welfare Cost Is $48,851

The increasing number of persons receiving welfare assistance is reflected in mounting costs in Delta county, where welfare expenditures in the county for August totaled $48,851.26 compared with $43,833.13 for the same month one year ago, according to a report by A. M. Gilbert, director of the Delta county social welfare board.

The number of old age assistance cases increased from 820 one year ago to 858, aid to dependent children from 157 to 178, while aid to the blind cases remained at 10. These three classes of assistance are financed equally by state and federal funds and totaled $37,979 last month. Direct relief cases increased in number from 213 to 265 and the cost from $4,789 one year ago to $6,294 for August this year. County welfare and county infirmaries costs decreased, however, and administrative cost remained approximately the same at $1,288.75. Direct relief is financed by state and county funds, while county infirmaries, county welfare and administrative are paid wholly from county funds.

Oct. 16 Deadline For Reregistering Township Voters

Township clerks of Delta county are directing attention of voters in their townships to the necessity for reregistering before Oct. 16, if they wish to cast their ballots in the Nov. 5 election. Purpose of the reregistration is to establish a permanent voter register as required by state law. Escanaba and Gladstone city voters do not have to register.

Attorney General John R. Dethmers has ruled that extra help for registration work may be hired by township officials. In a recent inquiry from Chippewa county officials on the township's status with regard to hiring extra help, Dethmers cited the state law as follows:

"The clerk of each township, city, and village is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint such number of assistants as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act. For the purpose of registering qualified electors such assistants shall possess all the powers and authority conferred by this act upon township, city and village clerks. Each such assistant, before he enters upon the discharge of his duties, shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office which shall be filed in the office of the township, city or village clerk as the case may be. Such assistants shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the township board or legislative body of the city or village."

Rich Goes Bear Hunting And Bags Two Prizes In One Day

By PHIL RICH
Chistochina (on Nabesna-Tok road), Alaska—I just got in from a bear hunt with Fuller "Bucko" Thompson. Score: Two bears taken in the Indian creek country 40 miles from here.

It was September 19 when Bucko and I pulled out in his ancient and creaking 17-year-old Ford truck with all our duffle aboard. Reardon had returned to Fairbanks after shooting his bear, so Bucko and I were alone when we hit for the snow-clad hills.

Weather Turns Cold
The sun was washing out behind the mountains when we made the creek after four and a half hours of scanning hills with the glasses for bear and pulling steadily up the road. The weather had turned cold. It first dropped to around 20, then in a day or two 16 and the night before we left 10 degrees above. You could see it was snowing in the mountains but only a stray flake or two fell in the valleys. The days have been crystal clear, the nights the same way and well lighted by northern lights.

Because it was late when we arrived, we hurriedly made camp by setting up our tent near the water and luckily found a plentiful supply of ready-cut firewood left by the road commission workers. A stove was put in the tent but by the time we cooked supper we had to build a fire outside the tent in order to see. There was no time to cut boughs, so we rolled into our sleeping bags under a tarp with canvas and slept on the ground.

At 5:30, I heard Bucko floundering around, starting a fire with spruce shavings and in a few minutes we were having a cup of coffee. He pulled some eggs from a sleeping bag where they were kept in order to prevent freezing and with bacon, toast and cornflakes we soon feasted, "dusted off" the dishes and by 7 o'clock were on our way up in the hills. It had been real snappy that night and was about 8 above when we set forth . . . unreasonably cold some of the old timers said.

Ice On Creeks
You could see the result of the cold on the creeks, three or four of which we waded. Some were frozen practically solid in spite of the rushing water and all had ice along the edges or where the water touched boughs or rocks. The ice also froze on our rubber shoes and Bucko's beard was so frosted I told him he looked like Santa Claus.

After several stops to scan the mountains, we made one halt at 8:30 to check a sunny hill. I thought I saw a moose and was telling Bucko to take the glasses and see if I was right, when he startled me with one word, "Bear!" Up to the left of the road and only about 150 feet away in the brush and spruce a bear came loping down the hill.

Four 'Hopeless' Shots Fired
He halted suddenly before reaching the road and I swung around with the 35 automatic. Usually these bear, if a brown or grizzly, will stand up and I hesitated a split second to see if he'd do it and give me a shot clear of brush. But he must have wined us or seen us for he whirled and bounded away. I tried to follow his course with four "hopeless" snap shots and Bucko added one for good measure.

Neither of us had much hope that the bear would be hit, but Bucko, who has good ears said he didn't hear the bear crashing through the brush as they do when scared. We waited a few minutes and watched the steep rising mountain under a few hundred yards away, thinking that the bear would strike for high ground if we missed. But he did not show up.

It seemed like a long time and inasmuch as we heard nothing nor could we see anything, we went into the brush—and cautiously. The woods here are full of game trails. I took one and Bucko another. Within 150 feet of the road I found the bear dead. We had made three lucky hits. One through the chest was fatal but a second had just missed his spine.

First Bear A 'Trophy'
The bear was the most unusual specimen I have ever seen. I thought at first it was a yearling brownie, but Bucko was quick to point out that he did not have "brownie ears." The ears were sharp, with short hair, the coat of fine silky texture. His nose was long and sharp. The back foot pads were comparatively small, his front ones large. The fur was almost a straight solid brown like some leather jackets. When blown the fur down deep is grey. Guides and game men say it is a variation of the black bear and may be a "trophy" or glacier bear variation. Most glacier bears are bluish in color but several guides tell me that there are great differences in these bears of the black bear family. Anyhow the hide is a good one.

Bucko and I skinned the bear out in about two hours and were just wiping the grease from our hands when I said in fun: "Do you think we should shoot another one here or move on up." "I think we better change the background for pictures," said Bucko. "Give me those glasses, though and I'll find another one on the mountain."

Second Bear Sighted
He had hardly set the glass on the opposite hill when he said, "There's a brownie." I thought he was kidding. "A cub?" I asked. "No," he said, "a good brownie is up there on the mountain. He's eating berries. I mean it. Here, you take a look." Sure enough there was a brown bear up there eating blueberries in a little valley on the mountainside.

It took so close that one would think he could walk up there in 10 minutes or so. But knowing something about Alaskan hills, I knew it would take more than that. But we hung the first bear hide on a stump, and started off. After we had crossed the frozen moss and tangle of willow on the flats, we came to the hill. Bucko was all for climbing the left ridge. I thought the right ridge was not so steep, but he had it figured out that the wind would be better and our position higher, which is an advantage. He was right, so up we went. We started from the spotting position at 11 a. m. and at 11:50 we made the peak. The climb was short but so steep we had to cling to the willows and brush on the side hill to stay up there and we skirted around to make the very top.

Only 250 Feet Away
When we came cautiously up to the top we did not see the bear where we had expected him. He had been pulling berries and drifting about but had disappeared in a "wash" or ravine just before we started. So we kept moving out toward the pinnacle of crushed rock. Suddenly, Bucko waved at me and went flat with a "There he is." The bear was out there only 200 feet which is close enough for these tough brownies or grizzlies.

So Bucko took the camera and I wielded the 35 automatic. It looked like a cinch and a sure shot at that distance. But the bear was not in good position. I waited until he turned and then sent one through. It connected and the bear went down, but bounded up and away running toward the brush. I added a couple more. One hit, one miss. The bear went down, got up and as he reached the top, stood up, let out a roar and bounded our way. "Here he comes," I said to Bucko, who was winding the camera. (The magazine camera always runs down when the bear stands up or does a charge or anything spectacular.) But the bear must have felt that his powerhouse was shut down, for he circled on the third jump and dashed over the hill and I gave him a parting shot, but missed.

Shot Through The Heart
An old guide once told me, "You just don't follow a wounded brownie." But we were still uphill and decided to go on over and see if we could find the bear or what had happened. At the hill top, we looked down a slope which was almost perpendicular. There he lay, among the tangle of willows, stone dead. Shot through the heart. He had run about 150 feet and had it been in our direction he could have made things interesting for us.

It was 11:55. It seemed like half an hour since we arrived. We took the pelt off in an hour and a half despite that slope and the willows and cold. Our day was over and we packed back to camp about an hour away down the hill and put on a big supper before turning in. Neither bear is especially large. I judged they would have a "hangup" length of not to exceed seven feet. The first one may have weighed about 300 pounds and the other perhaps 350.

Next morning at 6:20 Bucko and I were pulling out again, had a few frozen blueberries for dessert after breakfast and began to scan the slopes. Bucko had no more faith in that valley . . . wanted to move on. But it was so beautiful that I wanted to see more of it. So up we went, walking up to where there was a slight covering of snow in the canyon . . . probably seven miles. It took us three hours.

We saw plenty of tracks—fox, bear, moose, wolves. Some sign of the big brownie. But not one bear could we see anywhere. We passed two lakes, little gems squeezed down there between those huge mountains . . . both frozen over with four or five inches of ice. Then we had to get back.

I was leaving that night for Santa Claus lodge 80 miles away to catch the bus early the next morning for Fairbanks 242 miles north. Thus ended our successful bear hunt and now we're packing for home.

BIG SHRINKAGEMany Must Re-Register
To Insure This Privilege

As a result of the deletion from the City of Manistique's polling list the names of those who have failed to vote in the past two years and who have not since registered, the list of qualified voters in the city has shrunk from slightly in excess of 2,900 to 2,433, Alex Robertson, city clerk reveals.

Many of these voters were men in the service who would be required to re-register when they resumed their civilian status.

With October 16 the deadline date for registering for the coming election, people who intend to cast their ballot here, but have not voted here in the past two years are asked to call at the city hall on or before that date and have their names placed on the polling list. The city hall will remain open on the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 16, to accommodate all who wish to register.

Hall Discusses Amendments At Lincoln PTA

A pleasing program, introduced by Mrs. Golden Brock, program chairman, was presented at the regular meeting of the Lincoln P. T. A. Wednesday evening in the school gymnasium.

Mrs. Rose Patrick, talented soloist, rendered two numbers, accompanied by Miss Geraldine Gorsche. Mrs. Patrick's selections were "Serenade" by Schubert, and Joyce Kilmer's "Trees," music arranged by Oscar Rosbach.

Mrs. Alex Robertson's realistic reading, "Mother's Angel Child Goes to Church For the First Time," brought many a chuckle from the audience.

During the business session A. F. Hall, superintendent of the public schools, spoke on the three amendments which will be voted upon at the November election. He spoke briefly outlining the main ideal involved in Amendments 1 and 3 but in detail on the second amendment which is of utmost importance to anyone who is at all interested in the local schools maintaining the present standards.

This amendment as Mr. Hall stated, provides that one-third of Michigan's 3 per cent sales tax be allocated to local government and schools and that also each year the state must apportion the same proportion of the sales tax to the schools as it did in 1945. This means a great deal to our local schools and the Lincoln P. T. A. has gone on record as heartily endorsing this amendment.

Mr. Hall also urged that all members who have not voted in recent years should re-register, and those who are not registered, do so before October 16.

Mrs. George Morton, of the Lakeside-Central P. T. A., spoke of the history of the National Congress of P. T. A. and of the advantages of belonging to this organization. Mrs. Morton willingly answered all questions submitted to her and the Lincoln members decided to become affiliated with the national organization.

Mrs. J. J. VanDyck, president of the P. T. A., asked Mrs. Brock to serve as chairman of the division west of the railroad tracks, and Mrs. Albert Mersnick, that division east of the tracks, for the membership drive which will end at the next regular meeting.

The committees selected at a recent meeting of the executive board were also announced.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening with mothers of the 6th grade room as hostesses. Mrs. Jack Williams presided at the table decorated in the Halloween motif. Committee members in charge of arrangements were Mrs. Ed Harrington, Mrs. C. E. Moore, Mrs. Eldon Norton and Mrs. George Tuftell.

Tonors were accorded the third grade room, of which Mrs. Lillian Rowell is teacher, for having the most parents of pupils in attendance at the meeting.

CROP SURVEYYield In Schoolcraft Area Bigger Than
1945 Crop

Yield tests show that the Schoolcraft county potato crop is greater than in 1945. Last year, twelve growers had the distinct honor of producing potatoes in excess of 300 bushels per acre in Schoolcraft county. This year the number of growers to achieve this goal has increased to 22. Although the actual yield tests cannot be announced until the County Potato Show, the yields in general were higher than they were in 1945.

Competition in the growers contest will be keen particularly in the tablestock contest. All potato growers are invited to bring in samples to the Potato Show. The premium books have been mailed out to the growers and if any one was missed, copies can be picked up at the county agent's office. Look over the different classes and enter your sample in competition. You need not be a 300 bushel grower to enter a sample of potatoes in the show. Anyone can bring in a sample who grows enough potatoes for sale purposes.

Y., returning along the south shore of Lake Erie. Leaving the Levadoskis at LaPorte, they continued on to Chicago, Ill., returning home via Wisconsin.

New Officers
Take Charge Of Teachers' Club

The Manistique Teachers' Club, with new officers in charge, held its first meeting of the school year at the junior high school Monday evening. A widely varied program got the year's activities off to an interesting start.

Among the matters discussed was the sales tax amendment to be voted on in the coming election. S. B. Carlyon led the discussion and a resolution was passed favoring the measure. Earl Cousineau, vice president of the club, sang several solos and led in the group singing. The Rev. Oliver Andre Olson, missionary and former resident of Manistique, showed colored slides and presented a talk on education and community life in China.

Refreshments following the program were served by Miss Winifred Orr, club treasurer, and Mrs. William Mueller, secretary.

Plans for a county wide teachers' get-together on October 24 were discussed. Mrs. B. Hough, president of the county organization, presented plans for the occasion.

OPEN HOUSEParents Invited To See
Children Go Through School Routine

Manistique high school will hold open house on the evening of Thursday, October 17.

This annual event, held purposely in the evening so that parents may attend and see their children go through their regular daily routine of learning is being held in early fall this year instead of in the spring as has been the custom in years past, in the hope that parents from rural areas will find it more convenient to attend than they formerly did.

The arrangement of classes will be changed somewhat in order that the day's schedule may be put through in a shorter space of time, but the classes themselves will be the same, both as to length and the manner of conducting them.

The classes will begin at 7 o'clock and end at 8:30. Immediately following this will be a program which will last about half an hour and lunch will be served in the home economics room as a final touch.

This open house is sponsored by the Lakeside - Lincoln Parent-Teacher Association with the cooperation of the high school personnel. This organization is very anxious that parents from both city and rural districts attend the session so as to see and understand better the inner workings of the high school.

Open house will be confined to the high school alone, the grade school event of this order will be held in the spring in connection with the school exhibit.

The Elmgrens are former residents of this city. Miss Elmgren was recently graduated from Blodgett Memorial School of Nursing in Grand Rapids.

Three Men Pay
Heavy Fines For
Poaching Deer

The voluntary appearance in justice court Thursday morning of Donald Carroll, of Gulliver, and his plea of guilty to the illegal possession of a deer, brought to completion a case involving three deer and three men.

Charles T. Lander, arrested Thursday a week ago, on his plea of guilty, was fined $50 and $8.50 costs. His gun and the car that held the three deer carcasses were also held for a time pending the appearance of the other two men who escaped at the time the arrest was made.

Saturday morning, Charles Genreau, of Manistique, Rt. 1, voluntarily appeared before the court and drew the same fine and costs as Lander.

The car and guns have been released from custody, but the men, in addition to being fined are denied the privilege of hunting deer for the next three seasons.

Dodgers Release Vet Joe Medwick

Brooklyn, Oct. 10 (AP)—Joe Medwick, veteran outfielder, was given his outright release by the Brooklyn Dodgers today.

"We have so many young players that we thought it best to give Joe his release now so he would have all winter to find himself another baseball connection," club president Branch Rickey said.

Medwick, who will be 35 next month, has been in the big leagues for 14 seasons and has a lifetime batting average above the .320 mark. He was signed by Brooklyn late in June and was used as a pinch hitter and utility outfielder.

A harvest of approximately 600,000,000 pounds of fish is reaped annually by California from the Pacific Ocean.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The University of Wisconsin may, in effect, make the decision whether or not the Western conference will enter into a five-year contract with the Pacific conference to control the selection of teams to play annually in the Rose bowl. The matter is now before the Big Nine and five affirmative votes are required to approve the plan. Ohio State, Iowa and Indiana seem certain to vote affirmatively and Michigan may go along with them. Illinois has already voted negatively and Minnesota and Purdue probably also will cast "No" ballots. Northwestern's position is uncertain but Northwestern voted against Ohio State in 1944 when the Buckeyes sought permission to play in the Rose bowl. Assuming Northwestern has not changed its mind, that leaves the issue squarely up to Wisconsin.

The proposal is one with a lot of merit. Annually the Western conference produces at least one of the top teams in the nation. This also is generally true in the Pacific conference. The Rose bowl game, of course, is not a national championship contest and was never designed for that. It is simply an inter-sectional contest involving two of the better teams of the nation, coated with considerable holiday color. In that sense, it is a good show and something for college teams to shoot at. Moreover, it might do some good by encouraging non-conference universities to adopt Big Nine athletic standards.

Sometimes football officials are called upon to make the toughest kind of decisions, as Referee Bill Downes was Sunday at Milwaukee when he stopped the clock in the last 10 seconds of play to give Los Angeles time for one more play—a touchdown and victory. Downes ruled that the Packers were purposely killing time to prevent the Rams from running another play from the one-yard line, so Downes invoked the rule which authorized him to stop the clock. It created plenty of furore from the packer bench and particularly from Coach Lambeau, who filed a protest with the National league. The protest, of course, will be rejected because Downes was merely exercising his judgment, which is, after all, what he was being paid to do.

Another very interesting schedule awaits high school football fans this weekend. This is the way they look from this corner: Marinette 20, Stevens Point 7; Neenah 13, Houghton 6; Stambaugh 7, Iron River 6; Menominee 13, Iron Mountain 0; Hancock 7, Stephenson 0; Norway 19, St. Joseph 0; Soo 20, Marquette 0; Munising 7, Manistique 0; Calumet 13, Ishpeming 6; Gladstone 19, Newberry 0; Escanaba 15, Kingsford 0; Wakefield 13, Crystal Falls 6; Bessemer 20, L'Anse 0; Lake Linden 13, Ontonagon 7.

MAROONS GAIN GRID PRESTIGE

Ironwood And Gladstone Also Are Ranked In "Big Three"

Menominee, Ironwood and Gladstone are ranked as the "big three" in the list of five undefeated teams in the Upper Peninsula high school football ranks. Considered by many observers as the No. 1 team in the upstate area are the Menominee Maroons who will seek their third straight Michigan victory at Iron Mountain Saturday after rolling over Escanaba 24-7. Menominee's performance against Escanaba was considerably more impressive than that of Ironwood, winner over Escanaba 19-7. Prior to last week, Ironwood was conceded the No. 1 spot.

A new up and coming contender in the undefeated class is Gladstone, a team which rolled up 132 points in its first three games. Gladstone will be tested Saturday by Newberry. Ironwood suffered a 7-0 upset last Saturday from Hurley. Games with Wisconsin opponents are not included in the standings.

Houghton posted its fourth win with a 33-0 verdict over Hancock and Stambaugh drew an open date Friday night. Stambaugh, undefeated but tied, risks its record in a clash with Iron River. Houghton moves out of the Copper country for a battle with Neenah.

MUNGER MOWS DOWN RED SOX

Loyal Boston Rooters Amazed As Red Birds Batter The Apple

BY GAYLE TALBOT

Boston, Oct. 10 (AP)—Bashing six Boston pitchers, for a record-equalling total of 20 solid hits, the St. Louis Cardinals slugged over a one-sided 12 to 3 victory over the Red Sox today to again deadlock the World Series at two wins apiece.

An amazed crowd of 35,645 loyal Sox rooters, who had been given to understand that their own boys packed the heavy artillery, sat for the most part in morose silence as the rampant Red Birds tied the previous record for hits set by New York Giants in the 1921 series against the Yankees.

Every man in the Cardinal lineup, including Pitcher George Munger, joined in the thunderous outburst of bingles. Three of them, Enos Slaughter, Whitey Kurowski and Joe Garagiola, led another series mark by slugging four safeties apiece. Bostonians hadn't seen anything quite like it since the battle of Bunker Hill. Calm in the midst of the carnage, Munger, who only two months ago still was sweating it out with the Army of Occupation in Germany, mowed the Sox hitting array down with nine scattered hits and permitted only one earned run as he made certain the play-off would return to St. Louis.

York Gets Honest One
The lone honest tally made off the big right-hander was knocked in, naturally, by Rudy York, the balding popoose from Georgia, who snapped a double into right-center field in the fourth inning after Ted Williams had lined a single.

The other two resulted from Bobby Doerr's home run in the eighth after Don Di Maggio had reached base on a flimsy error by Shortstop Marty Marion. They never should have scored, and Munger, whose employment by Manager Eddie Dyer had been regarded as a considerable gamble, should have been credited with a one runner.

By knocking tall Tex Hughson from the mound in the third inning with a concentrated assault and continuing to belabor his five-hitter, but inept successor, the Cardinals made it a brand new World Series, and the stunning blow they administered to the American League champions might still be felt in the fifth game here tomorrow.

Munger's unexpectedly brilliant performance "set up" the Cardinal hurling staff and made it certain the Bostonians would have to look once again at both Howie Pollard and Harry Brecheen, the two crack left-handers who gave them so much trouble in the games at St. Louis.

Cronin In Daze
Manager Dyer said Pollard, who lost the opener at St. Louis on Rudy York's 10th inning homer, would sizzle them again against tomorrow. Either Hickey Harris, who was beaten by Brecheen in the second game, or Joe Dolan, who was expected to go for the Red Sox, though Manager Joe Cronin, still somewhat dazed by what he had just seen with his very own eyes, was none too certain about anything.

Bobby Doerr, the Sox second baseman, was spared at least part of his manager's travail through the fourth inning, when he was stricken with a headache toward the close and sought, with Cronin's full permission, the sanctuary of the clubhouse. He was expected to be okay by tomorrow.

Whether Hughson and the other five Sox throwers ever would recover completely from the knocking around they took was entirely problematical. The other five were too fatigued to name them, too were in the order of their appearance, Jim Bagby, Bill Zuber, Mace Brown, Mike Ryba and Clem Dreisewerd.

Ryba, at 41, was the oldest of the lot, and he didn't do any worse than the others. They all looked about alike to the Cards. No other team, incidentally, ever has used more flingers in a World Series game.

Defense Shifted
While everyone on the St. Louis team got in on the act, Slaughter swung the biggest bat. Starting with a lead-off homer in the second that greased the skids for Hughson, the fleet Card right-fielder followed with a double and two singles and scored four of his team's runs.

Kurowski slammed two doubles and two singles. Garagiola, the 20-year-old rookie catcher, hit a two-bagger and three singles in succession and powered three runs across the plate. Marty Marion weighed in with a double and two singles and knocked in three.

It was not until two were out in the ninth that Captain Terry Moore finally got his hit, a single into center, but it proved the one that tied the record.

The Cards changed their defense against Williams since his successful bunt of the previous game. They shifted Marion over to the right of second, alongside Red Schoendienst and Mustal, and left Kurowski to guard the third-base territory.

The slayer of Tecumseh, famous Indian chief, was Richard M. Johnson, who became a vice president of the United States.

DEADLIEST AT DAWN

A rattlesnake is more poisonous early in the morning than at midday. A rattler strikes at everything in its path, and during the little the venom has had a chance to accumulate poison in its glands.

CHICAGO PRICES

CHICAGO BUTTER
Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP)—Butter, firm: AA 92 score, 88.5 to 89; A 92, 87.5; B 90, 86.5; C 85, 85.

CHICAGO EGGS
Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP)—Eggs, steady to firm; prices unchanged.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP)—Strength returned to an active market on fed steers and yearlings today and prices surged upward 25 cents a hundredweight. Other classes were irregular. Hogs were steady at ceilings, slaughter lambs were active, and ewes steady to 25 cents higher.

Receipts ran mainly to beef cows and stocker-feeder supplies. The market top of $20.25, the ceiling, was paid sparingly, most slaughter steers getting $17.50 to $19.50. Good beef cows brought $14.50 to $15.50, vealers were steady at $18.00 and downward, bulls were steady to 25 cents lower, and stock cattle brought $15.50 to $17.75.

Shippers bought 200 of the 1,000 salable hogs in the pens, another 1,000 going to packers. All brought the one price of $16.25, the ceiling.

Good active lambs brought $20.25. Western lambs were scarce. Ewes merited $10.00 to $10.50 for good to choice western and native types. Two loads of yearlings weighing about 75 pounds went to a feeder buyer for $15.00.

Total receipts included 3,500 cattle, 500 calves, and 3,500 sheep.

Shortages Rough On Grid Training Table

BY ROBERT GRUBB

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—If you think things are rough in these days of shortages, pity the poor football player.

The college training table is feeling the meat scarcity and at least one squad is dining on horse meat—knowingly, that is. Replies to an Associated Press survey indicated, however, that while meat is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain, most schools have been able to get it.

Many coaches and trainers are wondering, though, even as you and I, if and when the situation is going to improve. Out in Manhattan, Kas, Coach Hobbs Adams of Kansas State offered today to trade two of his big tackles and a quarterback for a nice, juicy ham.

So far, however, Kansas State gridgers have been eating those succulent ringed steaks for which the town is famous.

Michigan U. Trainer Roy Roberts, who was with the Army team before going to An Arbor, said in all his experience he never knew of a strictly vegetarian footballer.

There are plenty of substitutes for meat, he declared, "but the present day fellow would squawk to high heaven if he didn't get his meat." Further, Roberts adds, a lack of meat would "be bad on a player's morale."

Out at the University of Missouri, the authorities just threw up their hands and abandoned the football training table altogether because of the general food situation. Coach Don Faurot said his players haven't had a bit of beef of any kind on road trips and only occasionally at home.

Michigan State has enough meat on hand for pre-game steaks until Saturday but the supply is uncertain after that. The college has applied for an OPA permit to slaughter its own meat.

Northwestern Coach Lynn Waldorf says "We don't have meat every night, and we've had a lot of chicken, but the meat shortage has not affected the team."

Normal training menus have been discarded at Purdue and the players are eating whatever food is available, says Coach Cecil Isbell.

At Notre Dame, David Ford, manager of the dining hall, said "We are having a tough time but so far we have been able to scrape together enough food for our football players."

From West Point comes the encouraging word that the polo ponies are still safe. "There's a definite meat shortage here, but we haven't resorted to horse meat yet," said an army spokesman.

Out in Ames, Ia., the Iowa State gridgers are actually eating horse meat. And Tex Oliver, coach at the University of Oregon, reacted to the news by saying "We believe in red meat even if it's horse or goat meat—but we haven't had to eat that yet."

Green Bay Packer Killed In Plunge

Milwaukee (P)—Milton W. Larsen, 55, president and treasurer of the Larsen Co., a Green Bay canning concern, was killed last night in a fall from the second floor of the Milwaukee sanitarium.

Dr. E. M. Paine, a resident physician, said he discovered Larsen sitting in an open window of his room and attempted to persuade him to come back inside. The physician said as he reached for Larsen, the man jumped. He was killed instantly by the 25-foot fall.

Larsen was admitted to the sanitarium yesterday. He had

Local Meat Dealers Join In Protests Against OPA

Fourteen retail meat dealers last night met in council chambers at Escanaba city hall and voted to telegraph Washington officials and representatives in the senate and congress demanding the removal of OPA control of cattle beef and veal.

Frank O. Beck, Escanaba food retailer, conducted the meeting and appointed a committee to draft the telegrams which will be sent today. The committee appointed included Trygve Olson, Fritz Breitenbach and Beck. The name of the meeting chairman was added at the request of the group.

The meat retailers also voted to include in the telegrams to OPA the ultimatum that after a certain date (two weeks from the date of last night's meeting was suggested) Delta county retail meat dealers would either be forced to ignore OPA meat controls or close their doors.

Suggested names of officials to whom the telegrams would be addressed included those of President Truman, Paul Porter, OPA director; Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson; U. S. Senators Homer Ferguson and Arthur H. Vandenberg, and Congressman Fred Bradley.

In discussion prior to the decision that telegrams would be headed the firm founded by his father for 20 years. The company owns and operates plants at Fort Atkinson and Kent, Mich., in addition to the Green Bay factory.

Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor, on which the Statue of Liberty stands, was named after Isaac Bedloe, its first owner, granted the land prior to 1670.

ned meat to offer. There was some comment concerning "lucky" retailers who might get a little meat in occasionally, but the consensus of the dealers was that the present meat situation is generally critical.

There was also considerable discussion on the proposal to establish a "defense fund" in the event the retailers carry out their threat to ignore OPA controls and one of their numbers is prosecuted. It was decided to let that subject rest until later, with the possibility of another meeting soon if meat controls are not relaxed or abandoned.
